REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

To the School Board and Citizens of Bedford:

TEACHERS AND SCHOOLS.

The present year has brought but one change in the teaching staff. Miss Helen Colby, of Manchester, a graduate of Plymouth Normal School, is in charge of Number Six Grammar School.

The same schools are operating this year as last. The arrangement by which the pupils from Number 9 district and upper grade pupils from Number 5 were brought to the Center is working most satisfactorily. The idea of centralizing schools has not been carried as far in actual practice in this state as in many others. But in nearly every case where transportation is possible to some graded school the results are advantageous, and after a try at it neither pupils or parents desire to return to the "one-room" school. A one-room school costs about $1,000 or more per year to operate. A school of 6 or 8 pupils costs as much as one with three or four times as many, resulting in a very high per capita cost.

SCHOOL COSTS.

The perennial question of school costs is with us. Taking all of the elementary schools of the state for last year, the median total cost per capita, was $78.94. The median total costs for Bedford is $76.74. This will indicate that Bedford costs are slightly under the state average, which also means that about half of the 247 school districts in the state are paying more than Bedford per capita. This means that in most cases, more is being spent for books and supplies and teachers and necessary items than Bedford is paying. If one asks when school costs will "come down" to where they were years ago, it can be answered that, when people of our cities and towns and communities live as they lived 25 to 40 years ago, with all prices as they were then, with requirements as to buildings and teachers and books as they were, school costs will lessen.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL GRADUATES AND HIGH SCHOOL .

ATTENDANCE:

Last June, 11 young people completed the work of the elementary schools. Of these, 5 have gone to Manchester High Schools and one enter St. Anselms.

The record which these young people make in the Manchester schools, will compare favorably with the record made by any similar number from other schools. The list following gives practically all of the young people in high schools at the present time. Most, but not all of these are pupils for whom Bedford pays tuition.

HEALTH SUPERVISION.

The following report is submitted by Miss Edith G. Walk, R. N., the school nurse.

A physical examination is afforded every child by the school authorities at the beginning of every Fall term. The pupils should make the most of this not merely to learn if they are able to attend school but how they can make themselves better able. We aim to encourage out-door recreation. We emphasize sanitation and fresh air in the school buildings, sleep, proper food and exercise.

If a communicable disease finds its way into a school a short talk is given on symptoms, duration of malady and preventive measures. To safeguard and advise in matters of health in the homes where conditions and environment is not as it should be. Right here I'd like to state a case where quick action and constant watching prevented more serious trouble in the home as well as in the school. In December a new pupil who had only been in our school five days, having come from a city, was sent to the Isolation Hospital with scarlet fever. The next day a little girl in the same school room was sent home ill but no doctor called. Three days later I visited the home and on examination of throat, temperature and symptoms diagnosed, in my own mind, as scarlet fever and immediately notified a physician and the board of health. This was one of my Goffs. schools. She was isolated in another part of the house and by calling every few days the other three children were watched and escaped the disease. There were no other cases reported at school. Another case was brought to my attention quite recently when I had occasion to call at the home of an Italian family. An older boy, who was one of eight children, had been having a series of boils on his face and neck and I had taken him into the city to a clinic for treatment. During one of my calls at his home to dress these boils I found a younger brother and sister sick with what they said were colds. Both were running a temperature, both had patches on the membrane of the throat. I immediately got in touch with a physician, went with him to the house, cultures of the throats were taken and sent to Concord. Fortunately the report came back negative to diphtheria.

Every child should make a regular annual gain, therefore, each pupil is weighed and measured so that we may ascertain their rate of growth according to the scale prepared by the New Hampshire State Board of Health. One hundred seventy pupils were examined the first of the school year by Dr. Coburn, the school physician, and the parents notified of any weakness, deformity, or defects found. The heart, lungs, throat, teeth, eyes and ears are parts of the human machinery that goes through this annual medical inspection, and is just as necessary to the school system as books. I shall be very glad to have the mothers present at these September examinations that they may see just what we do.

Among the activities that come under this head is the baby clinic which is for children of pre-school age. About seventy were examined at our last clinic which was under the personal direction of Mrs. Mary S. Davis, R. N., of the State Board of Health.

The following report is from October, 1925 to December, 1926:

Number of School Calls	320
Number of Home Calls	82

Children accompanied to the dentist	1

EQUIPMENT OF SCHOOLS.

The effort has been to provide for the pupils as much of the good and best in books and equipment as is possible to provide with the amount we have to spend. At the present time, altho wanting many things, the books in kind and quality will compare favorably with other schools.

TESTS.

As a means of checking up ability and achievement, a number of different "Standard Tests" in subject matter and general information are used. These afford a means, not only of pointing out strengths and deficiencies as well, but also enable teachers to determine how any individual group or grade compares with standards which generally prevail in similar grades and groups throughout the country. In a free and informal way, the endeavor is, as far as possible to provide ample opportunity for pupils according to their ability. In the smaller schools, it is possible to give more attention to the individual and insist that more should be done by the pupil capable of doing more.

One Word More.

Now and then some parent may be moved to express disapproval or criticism of certain things or happenings in connection with the schools. Perhaps the infrequency of this might be a cause of encouragement, knowing how many weaknesses there are. Mere fault-finding, however, is a pernicious habit. Construction criticism is wholesome. Occasionally, (not as frequently as one might wish) a parent or parents feel that some added equipment or books would be an advantage for pupils—if these things could be obtained, and offer to do anything they can to secure the desired aids. This is splendid. One expression of such an attitude is found in the "Library" at No. 6 Grammar Room—consisting of but few less than 100 volumes, for the young people there. This is the result of an intelligent constructive interest.

In working in and for the schools of Bedford it has been a privilege to be associated with the members of the School Board individually and as a group. Their open mindedness, their desire always to do what their best judgment suggests, the entire freedom from clique or prejudice, the promptness with which matters are attended to, their complete and intelligent co-operation, has made for the greater effectiveness of the schools and has made my work with them a pleasure.

Respectfully submitted,

J. BYRON TARNEY,

Superintendent of Schools.
